Mystery Solved.
The Great Secret of the Wonderful
SUCCESS OF VEGETINE.
It strikes at the root of disease by purifying the blood, restoring the liver and kidneys to healthy action, invigorating the nervous system.

Reliable Evidence.
MR. H. R. STEVENS:
DEAR SIR—I will most cheerfully add my testimony to the great number you have already received in favor of your great and good medicine, VEGETINE, for I do not think enough can be said in its praise, for I was troubled over thirty years with that dreadful disease, Catarrh, and had such bad coughing spells that it would seem as though I could never breathe any more, and VEGETINE has cured me; and I do feel to thank God all the time there is so good a medicine as VEGETINE, and I also think it one of the best medicines for coughs and weak sinking feelings at the stomach, and advise everybody to take the VEGETINE, for I can assure them that it is one of the best medicines that ever was.
MRS. L. GORE,
Cor. Magazine and Walnut Sts.,
Cambridge, Mass.

THOUSANDS SPEAK.
VEGETINE is acknowledge and recommended by physicians and apothecaries to be the best purifier and cleanser of the blood yet discovered, and thousands speak in the praise who have been restored to health.

Report from a Practical Chemist & Apothecary.
BOSTON, Jan. 1, 1874.
DEAR SIR—This is to certify that I have sold at retail 15½ dozen (1852 bottles) of your VEGETINE since April 12, 1870, and can truly say that it has given the best satisfaction of any remedy for the complaints for which it is recommended that I ever sold. Scarcely a day passes without some of my customers testifying to its merits on themselves or their friends. I am perfectly cognizant of several cases of Scrofulous Tumors being cured by VEGETINE done in this vicinity. Very respectfully yours,
AT GILMAN,
463 Broadway.
To H. R. STEVENS, Esq.

VEGETINE
Will Cleanse Scrofula from the System.
Honest Opinion.
MR. H. R. STEVENS:—
DEAR SIR—This is to show that my son was taken sick in January, 1864, with Scrofula, which came out in large sores and ulcers on his leg and hip. His leg was swelled more than twice its natural size. He had several doctors of high standing in their profession—two from Boston and three from Charlestown—without getting a bit better. He was obliged to lie wherever he was placed, for he had no use of his limbs whatever. When we had given up all hopes of his living we were told to try VEGETINE, the great blood remedy; and he had taken it but a short time before we could see a great change. The sores run so fast that we had to change the cloths four or five times a day. Still, he was getting better; for he could move his limbs and help himself a little. He was soon able to sit up in bed, and, by constant use of VEGETINE, it has cured him. He has a lame leg, which he will probably have for life; but we all honestly believe, if we had used VEGETINE before we had bothered with those doctors, it would have saved the use of his leg, and restored it to natural health. I have all those troubles with Scrofula will read this testimony of me and my son, who is now well and able to speak for himself. CATHERINE MAHONEY,
DANIEL MAHONEY,
19 Trenton St., Charlestown, Mass.
May 10, 1872.
The above plain but honest statement conclusively shows the quick and thorough cleansing effects of the VEGETINE in Scrofula.

VEGETINE is acknowledged by all classes of people to be the best and most reliable blood purifier in the world.

THE SOURCE OF VERSE.

Forever more, in the heart of things,
There are rhythmic pulsings and beatings,
And endless responses and echoings.

In rhythmic march days roll along;
"Day unto day" is the psalmist's song;
Wave rhymes with wave in the sea's grand throng;

They dance for joy, they clap their hands,
And in their white and crested bands
In rhyme they roll along the sands.

And as the child-like heart lies near
To nature's heart with listening ear,
This rythmic movement it thrills to hear,

Hence, in the earliest human speech,
Far back where only tradition can reach
Life's homeliest lore, 'tis the measuring teach.

From Mother Nature rhyme was caught,
It neither as an art was taught,
Nor as an artifice was sought.
—[CHARLES T. BROOKS, in the Boston Transcript.

THE TURKISH SULTAN.

GRAPHIC PEN-PICTURE OF SCENES OF POMP AND OSTENTATION IN THE ORIENT; THE SULTAN OF TURKEY GOING TO THE MOSQUE. A DECLINE OF THE ANCIENT MAGNIFICENCE;—THE NEW CUSTOMS AND CEREMONIES;—AN OBSEQUEIOUS AND SERVILE PEOPLE, ETC., ETC.

Although the sultans of today do not ride forth to the mosque with the splendid audacity and magnificent ostentation which distinguished their predecessors, there is yet enough of royal state and Oriental pomp in their processions to attract an admiring crowd of spectators. True they are not attended by the janissaries, for those legionaries—at once the glory and the curse of the empire, the terror alike of the sultan's subjects and of his foes, the spoilt children of warelike monarchs, the brawling, licentious, turbulent and overweening masters of weaker sovereigns, the outcome of many years of luxurious despotism, and, finally, the victims of a splendid crime—have long since ceased to exist.

REMINISCENCES OF THE PAST.

The memory of these bold and dissolute soldiers is fresh yet in many of the villages of the Bosphorus, notably in Arnaoutkieu and in Roumeli Hissar, wherein whole colonies of the janissaries resided: but the daring courage, the practical skill, the reckless fidelity and the haughty resolution which marked their career, and which, in many a well stricken field, made the horses of Russia turn their bridles, and caused even the bold horsemen of Hungary and Poland to quail, are lost to the house of Othman forever. Nor are the sovereigns of that house able now to surround their lives with the charms of oriental poetry and the wild quaintness of an Oriental landscape. The chief of the gardners is a Frenchman, his predecessor was a German, and the efforts of the one and the other have been directed to the creation of gardens which would be merely feeble imitations of the famo prettinesses of Sydenham, if nature had not revolted against restraint, redeemed precision by luxuriance, and hidden the mathematical arrangement of the parterres under a boundless profusion of bloom. Still less do the caliphs of the present resemble in person or in habit the "riding Sultans" of the past age.

A STATELY CEREMONY.

The sultan's progress to the mosque is, even in the present day, a stately and attractive ceremony, and one which, though it takes place every Friday, never fails to attract a crowd of sight-seers. On Friday the boulevard which extends behind the palaces of Dolmabogtche and Tchiragann presented an unusual animated and picturesque spectacle. On other days the Christian element predominates there, but on Fridays the faithful come from various quarters of the city, and far outnumber the Christian. As it is a holiday with them they are all en grande tenue, and the road is lighted up by the brilliant colors of their dresses. The children especially are arrayed in silks and cottons of the most gorgeous hues, while the hanoums, who are seated in their carriages, or who have found a vantage ground on a terrace, or on a raised plat of garden ground, bring all the colors of the rainbow to heighten the beauty of the scene. The lovers of quaint costume would do well to come here and make a careful study of the fur-lined caftans, the many-folded turbans, the sheep-skin caps—which are like colossal mops—the prodigiously capacious trowsers, the gorgeous sashes, thick set with pistols and yataghans, which may be met with in profusion. The soldiers who line the streets on these occasions are, I presume, picked men. At all events, they are fine, healthy, hardy young fellows, with bronzed faces and lithe, active limbs. They do not march with the regularity which an English drill-sergeant requires, but they get over the ground with a quick, swinging step, and look as if they could and would fling themselves into a breach or make a rush upon hostile guns with the necessary promptitude. The uniforms of the privates are picturesque, and leave the men the free use of their limbs; but the officers are bolted and buttoned and stocked after the most approved English models, and have a pinchushionary appearance which is by no means pleasing. Their horses are good and active little beasts, but as a rule they look too small for their riders. This, however, is a constant occurrence here, and I know of no more ludicrous spectacle than that which is presented by a tall and stout Turk as he prances along on a small Arab horse, whilst his servant runs after him, holding the horse's tail in one hand and his master's umbrella in the other. There is a strange mixture of

BARBARISM AND CIVILIZATION

in the scene which I am trying to describe, for the tramway runs along the boulevard, and at intervals the great unwieldy trams, which are of the very ugliest pattern, come lumbering through the crowd. They are preceded, however, by a runner, who, with bare shoulders, arms and legs, and only a modicum of clothing round his loins, pounds along and warns the crowd by shouts or by long blasts on a cow's horn, intimating that they must get out of the way. Here, too, through the crowd comes winding a long string of mules, laden with wood and scattering the foot passengers on either side; a shepherd drives in a mixed flock of sheep and goats to the shambles; a sedate old Turk leads home by a cord an enormous black-faced, thick-fleeced and very broad-tailed ram; an araba, laden high with furniture and drawn by bullocks, creeps painfully along; perhaps six hamals stagger under the weight of a wine puncheon which they are carrying on long poles; or two smartly dressed porters carrying a more brilliant attired hanoum in a sedan-chair, and, shouldering their way through the crowd with easy, patient steps, come two pairs of magnificent black buffaloes which have been passed into the service of civilization and haul coal daily for the neighboring gas works. But now the hour approaches for the great man to come forth. The progress of the trams suspended; the mules, with their jingling bells, are made to halt, or are turned up side streets; the hanoums crane their heads out the coach windows, the paternal Turks lift the gayly dressed children on to their shoulders, and the soldiers dress the wonted lines. Loud salvoes of artillery from the palaces, which are echoed by counter-firing from the palace of Beglerbeg on the opposite side of the Bosphorus, proclaim that the Father of the Faithful is wending forth to his devotions. He comes—grand sombre, turning neither to the right nor to the left, and heedless of the cheers which greet him and of the faces which light up as he passes. A few supplicants run forward with petitions, which are taken by the equerries, and then the Lord of Many Millions has passed by and the show of the day is over.—[Constantinople correspondence of the London Telegraph.

A STEEP STORY.—A German newspaper relates the following anecdote: In an imperial city lately a criminal was condemned to be beheaded who had a singular itching to play at ninepins. While his sentence was pronounced he had the temerity to offer a request to be permitted to play once more at his favorite game at the place of execution, and then, he said, he would submit without a murmur. As the last prayer of a dying man, his request was granted. When he arrived at the solemn spot he found everything prepared, and pins being set up and the bowls ready. He played with no little earnestness. But the sheriff at length, seeing that he showed no inclination to desist, privately ordered the executioner to strike the fatal blow as he stooped for the bowl. The executioner did so, and the head dropped into the culprit's hand as he raised himself to see what had occurred. He immediately aimed at the nine, conceiving it was the bowl which had fallen. All nine falling, the head loudly exclaimed, "Well, I have won the game!"

FISK UNIVERSITY.—The dedication of the Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn., on New Year's day marked the completion of a task that is deserving of the highest commendation as well for the energy with which it has been carried forward, as for the results which have been accomplished. The university is designed for the education and elevation of the colored people of the South, and it starts on what seems to be a firm and substantial basis. A notable feature of the work that has brought the institution into being has been the labors of the famous Jubilee singers, who, by their concerts in this country and Europe, have added a handsome sum to the funds of the university. They delighted many audiences by their plantation songs, and their handsome returns are more than counterbalanced by the entertainment they afforded. The university will have the best wishes of everybody for its enduring prosperity.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1876.

THE DAY.

The dividends paid in Boston on the first of January amounted to about $10,000,000.

The Providence Journal says, "When the French forces were at Newport, Mr. Brick, a wealthy inhabitant of Providence, gave an elegant dinner to Vaudreuil and other French officers." Can any of our readers inform us who was Mr. Brick?

The workingmen of Albany, N. Y., en masse called on the mayor yesterday and asked for relief. Steps are already being taken for their aid.

The Hon. P. C. Cheney was renominated for governor of New Hampshire by the Republicans yesterday, and William A. Pierce of Portsmouth was selected as candidate for railroad commissioner.

The United States government brought suit against Obadiah Durgan, of Portland, and fined him $5 for stopping a stage with the mails for the purpose of searching it for bad whiskey, supposed to be on board in violation of the state laws, the court holding that the federal law must take precedence.

At the inter collegiate literary contest Cornell students took the second oratorical prize, a prize for an essay and Dickens and Thackeray, the first prize for mathematics and the first prize for Greek. The last was taken by a lady. The colleges represented were Lafayette, Princeton, Williams, Cornel, Rutgers, University, of the City of New York, Hamilton, North Western University, College of the City of New York and St. John's College, Fordham, N. Y. The institution which is the least "classical" of all took the greatest number os prizes.

In the Mississippi legislature yesterday there was a furious comment on the governor's message. In the senate Mr. Ewell introduced a resolution to return the message to the governor, and inform him that the legislature was ready to receive information on the condition of the government and recommendations, but not to hear political campaign documents. In the house, a resolution was offered asking the gover or to give the dates and places where violence and intimidation occurred during the elections, and where the courts were suspended.

The reassembling of Congress yesterday was marked by the presentation in the House of a perfect avalanche of resolutions calling for the investigation of Republican legislation for several years past; it is expected also, that more will be submitted today. A resolution was offered compelling the Pacific Railroad companies to indemnify the government for interest advanced on subsidy bonds already issued. The Democrats were cleverly trapped on the question of employing disabled soldiers as subordinate officers in the departments and elsewhere. In the Senate, the principal business transacted was the introduction of a bill for the redemption of legal tender notes in accordance with the existing law, and for an amendment of the national currency act.

Mr. Goode of Virginia offered a resolution yesterday in the House asking the Secretary of the Navy whether any part of the money appropriated for the construction of the eight steam vessels of war authorized by the act of Congress of the 10th of February, 1873, has been misapplied for political purposes or used in any manner to promote the success of the Republican party, and especially whether any money has been paid to incompetent persons possessing no mechanical skill who have been employed in the navy yards on condition, expressed or implied, that they would vote for nominees of the Republican party. Mr. Holman, democrat, suggested to strike out the words "Republican party" and substitute for them the words "any political party." Mr. Goode agreed to modify the resolution accordingly, whereupon Messrs. Hale of Maine, Garfield of Ohio, and other Republicans said that there was no opposition to the resolution on that side. The resolution thus modified was agreed to.

Mr. Cason of Indiana offered a resolution in the House yesterday recognizing the brave and gallant services rendered by the loyal soldiers to the country in the time of the greatest need and peril, and earnestly recommending to the people the utmost care and watchfulness over the right and interests of these brave men by securing employment to them; that in all cases of public employment (all other things being equal) the soldier shall have the preference of the civilian, and declaring that the House is in favor of giving liberal pensions to diseased and crippled soldiers, their widows and children, and their dependent fathers and mothers. Seeing nothing in Cason's generalities proposition which they could not safely adopt, and anxious to disappoint and confound the other side, the Democrats made no opposition whatever to the passage of the resolution, suspicions that Fort of Illinois, or perhaps somebody behind Fort, was preparing something to force them to a practical application of their new principles, or incontinently to "take water." They did the latter, of course, under the lead of Wood, who was as dignified and clumsy as ever. Holman sturdily voted against his ride, as before, and stood as then, entirely alone.

A CASE OF LITERARY SNOBBERY.

The social snob is a man who knows nothing of social life, its courtesies, duties, and its rules, except its surface. He knows that he is required to take off his hat to ladies, but he knows nothing of that manly respect for womanhood, that chivalric devotion to purity and weakness that is the reason why a gentleman takes off his hat to a lady, or offers her his seat, or protects her from insult. He is thoroughly posted regarding all the forms of etiquette, but to him they are arbitrary rules devised to separate "our set" from "other people". Of the kind of feelings out of which these forms have grown he knows nothing. He does not experience them, nor does he understand their possession by others. He is the embodiment of etiquette in his treatment of ladies of his social circle; he is rude, perhaps insulting, to those less fortunate. He treats men according to their clothes because he is polite to no one on principle, and he observes the rules of good society only to those whom he considers the members of good society. Of course such a man sees nothing to admire in a plainly dressed woman, nothing to respect in an awkward man.

Similarly the literary snob is a man who judges everyone by the correctness of his speech, the extent of his education or the elegance of his gesture. If a man use bad grammar the literary snob can discover no admirable traits in him. If he be ignorant of art, uncultivated in his aesthetic tastes, the literary snob can not believe him possessed of great talents. If he be not a scholar, in short, the literary snob will not allow that he is entitled to the admiration and study of mankind. To be great a man must belong to the "set" that is honored by the membership of the literary snob.

The Nebulous Person of the Galaxy is a literary snob. In the current number of the Galaxy he has given us his idea of the late Henry Wilson. He has misjudged Mr. Wilson because that gentlemen was not of his set, just as the social snob misjudges a man in a hickory shirt, who may, possibly, be a man of considerable intellectual power and even some culture.

"In all Henry Wilson's life," says the Nebulous Person, "he did nothing, said nothing, which was of any particular moment beyond the few days or the few weeks that followed the doing or the saying." This is arrant literary snobbery. Mr. Wilson, it is true, was not a literary or scientific man. His house was not adorned with paintings nor was it conspicuously full of books. Of the Latin and Greek classics he knew little or nothing. But he had sufficient clearness of moral vision to know what was right, and sufficient moral courage to maintain and promulgate his opinions in the face of the violent opposition of a great majority, and to preserve unspotted his private character amid temptations to which many more cultivated men have succumbed. These are evidences of the possession of strength of character and true manliness in an eminent degree. But this is simply introductory. He devoted himself to a noble cause. He labored in season and out of season to attain it. He subordinated all other questions to the one great question of freedom for the slave. If he was a party man it was to secure this end. The parties that would not assist him in his enterprise he refused to be connected with. He did more probably than any other one man to bring about the abolition of slavery. During the war there was hardly a general in our armies who did more for the national cause than did the chairman of the Senate committee on military affairs. Few men have stamped themselves more deeply on the laws and constitution of a country than did Henry Wilson, but the Nebulous Person says "he was a man of a marked mediocrity of natural ability and of acquirement, not gifted in any way above thousands and tens of thousands of his contemporaries; neither had he studied anything, or acquired distinction in any art or mystery, even that of politics. And this mediocrity was characterized by a tameness which of course did not weaken but strengthen its expression."

Mr. Wilson's "History of the Rise and Fall of the Slave Power" strikes the Nebulous Person as "one of the dullest, most unthoughtful and unsuggestive historical books ever written." It may be true that "he was totally unfit to write a history of anything." Many men of affairs have been unfit to write histories. But the fact that Mr. Wilson was not a man of culture nor qualified to be an author is no justification of the literary snob of the Galaxy when he says of one of the most influential as well as unselfish of Americans that "in all Henry Wilson's life he did nothing, said nothing, which was of any particular moment beyond the few days or the few weeks that followed the doing or the saying."

The Nebulous Person judges from the surface. There he does not find the polish that those have whom he considers great men. Therefore he fails to comprehend the lofty aims, the force of character, the patience, the courage, the purity, the gentleness that he might have found below the surface. The liberated slave, the Union soldier, his country, all know that he did and said many things that were of "particular moment beyond the few days or the few weeks, that followed the doing or the saying." The influence of Henry Wilson's labors for universal liberty and national union is eternal.

OPENING OF THE NEW BRIDGE TO PUBLIC TRAVEL.—Tuesday morning, at half past 8, the Hon John S. Brayton, one of the committee on the construction of the new bridge across Taunton river, near Slade's ferry, and a director in the Old Colony Railroad Company, having been duly authorized by Chief Engineer Winslow of O. C. road, drove up to the bridge and gave directions for the removal of all obstructions, and the opening of the bridge to public travel. These directions were at once complied with, and Mr. Brayton, accompanied by his son, John S. Jr., were the first persons to cross this magnificent structure in a carriage. The committee who have had charge of this great work are the president of the Old Colony Railroad, the Hon. Onslow Stearns, Ephraim N. Winslow, chief engineer of the road, and also one of the directors, and directors John S. Brayton and Thomas J. Borden, Esq., of this city.—[Fall River News.

The Phrenological Journal and Life Illustrated for January, 1876, comes out in a handsome form, and crowded with entertaining and instructive matter. Among its special features and those deserving particular mention, are:

"American Women Journalists," a group consisting of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, "Grace Greenwood," "Jennie June," Mary Clemmer Ames, and Miss Louise C. Moulton, with their portraits; "About Superstitions," which reviews the abnormal religious notions of the past and of the present; "Reason and Religion," which discusses the relation of these two so-called antagonistic elements, and declares their natural harmony in man; "Soil and Soul," an essay abounding with excellent suggestions on the subject of agricultural pursuits; "Death in Life," a fine poem with illustrations; "My Resolve to be a Rich Man in Twenty-five Years," containing wholesome admonitions to the young men of society; "The late Vice-President Wilson," with a portrait and a fair characterization of the great man; "An Unconventional View of Herbert Spencer," which is a well-reasoned view of the distinguished author. The editorial and other departments are well filled.

The Globe for December.

"The Burning of the Mohawk," a lake propeller which lost its life in Buffalo Harbor, by fire last Summer, is made the subject of an effective full page etching, by Mr. A. W. Sangster, in the December number of the illustrated Buffalo magazine, The Globe.

"Quarter Street Episodes, by a Lodger," is the first of a series which promises to be particularly interesting. Quarter street, an odd out-of-the-way lane in a great metropolis, is made the scene of a number of episodes which are carried on by the inhabitants. The characters are treated in Dickens's style—without plagiarism, however—and the author, whoever he may be (for he makes himself known only by his nom-de-plume of Vieu-Ten), is certainly a close student of character. "The Episode" which occupies this beginning of the series is sub headed "The Rivalry," and maintains its interest from first to last.

"Sixty Seconds in a Drop of Water" is an imaginative sketch (to be continued), depicting the experience of a human being who has suddenly become transmitted to an imaginary world in a drop of water which is peopled by beings and things composed of the simple elements which enter into the composition of water, namely, oxygen and hydrogen. The article is from the pen of Rev. W. Alfred Gay.

"The Every Day Life of Byron" is an interesting installment; and The Editor's Portfolio abounds in matters of interest and in season.

The Chess Department, conducted by Mr. Geo. H. Thornton, is full and interesting, and contains a record of the first game of the Alberoni-Ensor match, together with some account of the match itself.

LOST HIS BRIDE.—The way a Virginia gentleman lost his bride by a flank movement skillfully executed by her, is told by The Petersburg Index of Wednesday. Thus runs the story: "A gentleman who lives in Henrico county was engaged to be married to a fair and accomplished lady of the county, and yesterday morning was the day fixed for the happy event. Accompanied by his brother, the gentleman came over to the city on Monday and went down to Wakefield on the evening train. Remaining over night with a friend in the neighborhood, the expectant groom yesterday morning, at the appointed hour, accompanied by his attendants, went to the residence of the lady's parents to claim his bride. To his utter amazement he discovered that she was not there. In her stead he found a letter addressed to him, stating that she had decided to share her fortunes with another whom she loved more than she could love him. It was ascertained that the lady and her affianced, (now husband) accompanied by friends, had taken private conveyances to North Carolina on Monday while the company at her house were enjoying themselves in the parlor. Fourteen couples had been engaged to wait at the marriage, and a brilliant reception awaited the gentleman from Henrico on his arrival home, with his bride. He is philosophical enough to take the receptions all to himself when he gets back."

HELPS FOR WOMEN.

There should be in every city a Woman's Fund from which they, and women desirous of studying other professions, or branches of art—as for instance, medicine, painting, sculpture—could draw the means to fit themselves for the career chosen. The disabilities under which women labor who essay a career out of the well-beaten overcrowded tracks of sewing and teaching are very many. And the higher the principle, the sterner the integrity of the girl, the harder is her way into honorable, lucrative employment. The ways to honorable and genuine place upon the stage are more difficult of access than those of most other professions. It takes much money to prepare properly for the entrance; and money or influence, or both, to make the entrance when ready. A girl may have great genius for the artist life, and not be able to command the proper instruction. And those who understand this matter best know that acting is an art, and the greatest genius needs to study and be trained for the work. After the necessary culture has been acquired it costs money where one aims high, especially in opera to make a debut. And here again women of principle are often hindered. There is no denying that one reason why so many actresses with little to recommend them beyond pretty faces, and fine wardrobes are starring upon the stage is that they are complaisant to demands that sully honor. Women weak in principle and rain in ambition, obtain place, while honest talent and capability, refusing to be bought, is pushed aside. There are honorable, generous men who are willing to help women in their efforts towards honorable independence, but they are few. And even of these sensitive women shrink from receiving favors. Society is so constituted that it compromises on woman to be indebted financially to even a good man. Here then is a reason why some scheme of helping women to help themselves should be inaugurated that will in no way humiliate them. There should be a fund under wise and gracious direction from which student or debutante might draw needful funds pledging herself to repay with interest from her first earnings as actress or prima donna. It should be emphatically a woman's fund, established by women for the help of women.—[SCOTTON CHANDLER in the New York Evening Mail.

AFTER THE REPUSAL.

You think I am cruel? Indeed, sir,
Tho' of naught can you fairly complain.
You may thank your good luck that you're fed, sir,
From a creature that loves to give pain.

Men call me unkind and capricious
When our choosing is cautious and slow;
And how you would brand me as vicious
Because I have firmly said "No."

You babble of rivals and treason;
And clearly you can't understand
That a woman may act for a reason
That is honest, and not understand.

You say that my form is "exquisite,"
That my eyes are "celestial blue;"
If they are—and your language is graphic—
If they are, they are too good for you!

I care not for "exquisite treasure,"
But with them I would rather not part
To a lover who plainly possesses
Neither youth, nor reason, nor heart!

No, sir! You may buy with your acres
Young Folly, or Prudence grown old;
But I've long since appraised all match-makers
That "this lot is not to be sold!"

.....Mr. Cesnola, United States consul at Larnaca in Cyprus, has made an important discovery at Episcopi, near Limassol, in the foundations of the old city of Curium. He has brought to light the tomb of some great personage of an early period. In the tomb were found gold and jewelled ornaments of great value, which will be forwarded to New York.

.....The vicar of Stratford-on-Avon, Dr. J. D. Collins, has issued an appeal in behalf of the restoration of the church of the Holy Trinity. He wants $50,000 to restore the fabric of Shakespeare's church as Shakespeare saw it, and $20,000 or $25,000 more to fit up the interior properly and in better fashion than at present. He has hopes that the Freemasons of England, India, Germany and America will undertake the former part of the task as soon as the grand master, the Prince of Wales, returns from India: the second part of the work he thinks might well be left to the public spirit of Stratford and Warwickshire.

.....A correspondent writes to the Cincinnati Commercial, "I do not know of a colored politician but who is an advocate of a third term. This may not increase your faith in the colored man's capacity to operate a republican government, but it is the truth. If it depended upon their will, and Grant consented, he would be king of this country in less than a month. The colored people have suffered more violence and murderous assaults since the war than they ever did in slavery, and they crave a strong government at Washington, with bayonets in it, and no state lines at all."

.....Mr. Disraeli's views on woman suffrage have come to light in the following letter written in 1873: "I was much honored by receiving from your hands the memorial signed by 11,000 women of England, among them some illustrious names, thanking me for my services in attempting to abolish the anomaly that the parliamentary franchise attached to a household or property qualification, when possessed by a woman, should not be exercised, though in all matters of local government, when similarly qualified, she exercises this right. As I believe this anomaly to be injurious to the best interests of the country, I trust to see it removed by the wisdom of Parliament."

.....Arsene Houssaye tells of a plebeian who went to Rothschild to borrow $2000. "Here it is," said the baron, "but remember that as a rule I only lend to crowned heads." M. De Rothschild never dreamed of seeing his money again, but wonderful to relate at the end of a month the borrower came back with his $2000. The baron could scarcely believe his eyes: but he foreboded that this was not the end. Sure enough, a month later the borrower reappeared, asking for the loan of $1000. "No, no," replied the baron: "you disappointed me once by paying me that money. I do not want to be disappointed again."

.....Mr. John M. Francis writing from China to the Troy Times, tells this anecdote about Bishop Harris's recent visit to the Methodist missions in that country: "He preached at a conference held in Amoy and made a profound impression upon the mind of the Chinese brethren. There were present quite a number of Chinese missionaries and preachers, and they were especially stirred by the bishop's fervent appeals and thrilling eloquence. On repairing to the steamer just before leaving, the bishop was accompanied by a number of the Christian Chinese to see him off. The parting was quite an affecting scene. One of the native missionaries speaking very earnestly to a Chinese brother, thus expressed his feelings: 'Spose no see (pointing to Bishop Harris); that 1 long number one topside piece Heaven pidgin man.'"

.....The original register of marriages at Gretna Green is announced for sale, by tender, by a Carlisle firm of solicitors. What a history, or rather biography in brief, of romantic runaway couples! Of what curious revelations is this register the custodian? The Gretna priests evidently once drove a roaring trade. Joseph Paisley, one of their number, is said to have received from Lord Westmoreland, Lord Deerhurst and Lord Erskine as much as 100 guineas for his few minutes' work. His successor, David Laing, also joined not a few scions of noble English families, such as the Villiers, the Beauclercs and the Coventry. How Lord Dundonald practically carried off the lady of his love to the famous village is graphically recorded in the autobiography of the gallant seaman, and it was at Gretna, too, that Shelley contracted the unfortunate marriage with his first wife, Harriet Westbrook.—[London Hornet.

Elements of Bone, Brain and Muscle.

The food contains the elements of bone, brain and muscle, and in a healthy system, properly nourished, the manufacture of these constituents is uninterrupted, night or day. On the other hand, when digestion or assimilation are imperfect, the manufacture is hindered, and the destructive not being counteracted by the reparative processes of Nature, the system is threatened with early decay. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are peculiarly fitted to overcome the causes which lead to an untimely decadence of the vital energies, removing as they do all obstacles to complete digestion and assimilation of the food and restraining an undue waste of physical substance. For the loss of strength consequent upon depelling diseases, they are the best possible remedy, and their healing effects upon the system enable it to withstand hurtful atmospheric influences inductive of malaria.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SEA WEED TONIC, AND MANDRAKE PILLS.—These deservedly celebrated and popular medicines have effected a revolution in the healing art, and proved the fallacy of several maxims which have for many years obstructed the progress of medical science. The false supposition that "Consumption is incurable" deterred physicians from attempting to find remedies for that disease, and patients afflicted with it reconciled themselves to death without making an effort to escape from a doom which they supposed to be unavoidable. It is now proved, however, that Consumption can be cured, and that it has been cured in a very great number of cases (some of them apparently desperate ones) by Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills, one or both, according to the requirements of the case.

Dr. Schenck himself, who enjoyed uninterrupted good health for more than forty years, was supposed, at one time to be at the very gate of death, his physicians having pronounced his case hopeless, and abandoned him to his fate. He was cured by the aforesaid medicines, and, since his recovery, many thousands similarly affected have used Dr. Schenck's preparations with the same remarkable success.

Full directions accompany each, making it not absolutely necessary to personally see Dr. Schenck unless patients wish their lungs examined, and for this purpose he is professionally at his principal office, Corner Sixth and Arch Sts., Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters for advice must be addressed. Schenck's medicines are sold by all druggists.

GENERAL NEWS

FROM WASHINGTON.

Senator Morrill's Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.

The following is the full text of the bill introduced by Senator Morrill, of Vermont, to provide for the redemption of legal tender United States notes in accordance with existing law:

Be it enacted, etc: That to further enable the Secretary of the Treasury to provide for the redemption of the legal tender United States notes in accordance with existing law, he is authorized to issue, sell or dispose of at not less than par legal tender United States notes bearing interest at the rate of not exceeding four and a half per cent per annum, described in the act of Congress, approved July 5, 1870, entitled an act to authorize the refunding of the national debt with like qualities, privileges and exemption to the extent necessary to carry into full effect the act of Congress, approved January 16th, 1875, entitled, "An act for the resumption of specie payments," and to use the proceeds thereof for the purposes aforesaid, and the said legal tender notes so obtained upon the issue of said bonds, shall be held and considered as a part of the final redemption of such notes, provided for in the act of Congress herein last mentioned, and shall be treated accordingly and cancelled; provided that the principal of the bonds herein authorized may be made redeemable at any time not less than thirty nor exceeding forty years from the date of issue.

SEC. 2. That all contracts entered into or made after the 1st day of January, 1873, shall be payable in accordance with the legal tender standard of gold and silver, unless otherwise provided at the time of the contract.

SEC. 3. That all national banking associations shall be and hereby are required to hold in coin as part of their lawful money reserve, on and after the 1st day of January, 1877, one-fourth, after the 1st day of January, 1878, one-half, and after the 1st day of October, 1879, three-fourths.

The Centennial Appropriation.

Several members of the centennial commission, with some of the leading citizens of Philadelphia, were on the floor of the House today urging immediate action with regard to their appropriation. There is to be a meeting of the select committee on the centennial exhibition tomorrow, when it is understood a bill will be framed covering the manner in which that appropriation, if made, shall be controlled and disbursed. In order to test the matter an effort will be made on Monday next to put through a bill under a suspension of the rules appropriating $1,500,000.

The Diplomatic and Consular Bill.

The sub-committee of the committee on appropriations, Messrs. Singleton and Hale, having in charge the diplomatic and consular bill, have completed it and will report it to the full committee tomorrow. The amount of the bill is about $75,000 less than last year, but the reduction is made on indefinite items, exchange for example, and not on regular appropriations. The expiration of the Mexican claims commission alone makes a reduction of $30,000. The bill will probably be reported to the House at once.

Goods in Bond.

Mr. Frost has in preparation a bill authorizing owners of ships to take from bond, duty free, any article for consumption on board their ships. This is allowed in every maritime country excepting the United States, but the placing of American ship-owners on an equality with foreigners in this respect is not the only reason for the passage of such a bill, since it is claimed that the increase of our commerce which will follow such an arrangement will swell the revenue infinitely more than the exemption under the bill will reduce it.

The Wheeler Compromise.

Mr. Levy, Democratic member from the Red river district of Louisiana, has written a letter to the Democratic members of the legislature of his state, urging them to make no attempt to disturb the Wheeler compromise. This action on Mr. Levy's part is rendered important by the strong influence which he possesses among the Democrats of Louisiana.

The Fur Seal Catch.

Lieutenant Maynard's Alaska report, which has been awaited for a long time with especial curiosity, came in today. The report speaks highly of the manner in which the fur seal company has met its obligations, but opposes granting the company's request for permission to take an increased number of seals per year at present.

"BREAD OR WORK."

The Unemployed Workingmen at Albany.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.

The workingmen of this city, becoming uneasy at the want of employment and inability to secure it, have held several meetings and paraded the streets with banners on which were inscribed: "Bread or Work." Today a delegation called on the mayor to inquire if anything could be done for their relief. Mayor Judson received them courteously and informed them the water commissioners were considering whether it would be advisable to commence building the new reservoir at this season, and thus furnish employment to some of the unemployed. He also further expressed his disapproval of any demonstrations such as had been made. The delegation appeared satisfied with the interview, but another meeting is to be held.

AT THE GATE.

"For, behold, the kingdom of God is within you."
The kingdom here?
Lord, can it be?
Searching and seeking everywhere
For many a year,
"Thy kingdom come" has been my prayer,
Was that dear kingdom all the while so near?

Blinded and dull
With selfish sin,
Have I been sitting at the gates
Called Beautiful,
Where Thy fair angel stands and waits
With hand upon the lock to let me in?

Was I the wall
Which barred the way,
Darkening the glory of Thy grace,
Hiding the ray
Which, shining out as from Thy very face,
Had shown to other men the perfect day?

Was I the bar
Which shut me out
From the full joyance which they taste,
Whose spirits are
Within Thy Paradise embraced—
Thy Blessed Paradise, which seemed so far?

Let me not sit
Another hour
Idly awaiting, what is mine to win,
Blinded in wit,
Lord Jesus, rend these wall of self and sin,
Beat down the gate, that I may enter it.

MAKING MONEY.

GREENBACKS COUNTED TWENTY TIMES BEFORE THEY ARE ISSUED. WHERE OUR PAPER MONEY COMES FROM, AND HOW IT IS MADE.

The general public, while capable of recognizing any flaws in the impress of bank notes or fractional currency, knows very little of the care exercised by the government in protecting itself against their fraudulent issue, or of the many safeguards thrown around the various stages which greenbacks undergo before they are placed in circulation. Every possible contingency is so surrounded with strict enactments, and so much red tape is necessary, that the expense of printing treasury notes is enormous. In the first place, the manufacture of the peculiar paper used is supervised by government inspectors, against whose integrity numberless checks and counterchecks have been devised and are strictly enforced. In the next stage, printing the backs of notes, the closest supervision is exercised and the strictest account required. For instance, in printing the backs of fifty-cent notes, which work is done by the Philadelphia Bank Note company, in the United States appraiser's building. Second street, above Walnut, the sheets are counted at least eight times, and a register kept of each count. In this establishment over forty presses are continually employed in printing the backs of notes required to replace a worn out currency. The paper is received in sheets of sufficient size to take an impression from plates on which sixteen engravings of the note have been made. The number sent in the package from the paper factory is not stated, as the box is sealed with the government stamp. A return is made by the party furnishing and the party receiving the paper of the exact amount without the knowledge of each other's count, so that the possibility of any fraud upon the Treasury is prevented. As soon as each sheet is accounted for the paper is sent into the wetting room. The chief of that department, before he acknowledges the receipt of any package, requires that the number of sheets be ascertained by one of his assistants. After the paper has undergone the soaking process it is again inspected and an account opened with each printer, who, in turn, must furnish a receipt for every sheet thus given him. Then on a hand press, with a girl adjusting the sheet to the plate and to the press, the printer strike off the impression one by one until one hundred have been printed. The sheets are then transferred to the drying department and again counted; racks are arranged in a warm room so as to expedite this work, and in a few hours the sheets are taken to the counting room, being twice counted in the change. Then they are returned to the superintendent of the printing department, Mr. John McGur, under whose management all these intricate details have been followed out and the notes packed up for shipment to Washington, where the face is printed and the seal of the United States Treasury affixed. It is, therefore, safe to calculate that before a fifty-cent note reaches the public it will have been counted at least twenty-two times. So it is with all the currency afloat. The appliances for carrying on this work must be complete, and nothing but the best of workmanship is allowed by the government in printing the circulating medium. The designing and engraving rooms, with their delicate machinery and skilled labor, are marvels, and the system of checks employed throughout the various branches is such as to render the consummation of any frauds upon the company or the government an utter impossibility.

SOME RESULTS OF THE EMANCIPATION OF THE SERFS IN RUSSIA.

If one travels through the governments of Russia proper, from the Volga district to the extreme south, visiting the villages and observing the family life of the peasants, one is driven to the sad conclusion that the condition of the Russian peasantry has not only not improved, but has in several respects, both moral and material, become unquestionably worse. * * * It is sufficient to visit any village to become convinced that the prosperity of the peasants has diminished to such a degree that a great number of them have been reduced to absolute poverty. Their moral condition is even more lamentable, and drunkenness has become far more prevalent than it was before the emancipation. The results are listless indifference, unwillingness to work, and an increasing discontent, which manifests itself in brutal acts of destruction and incendiarism. In the southwestern governments, and especially in those of Penza, Kursk and Voronej, a day rarely passes but the sky is reddened by the flames of a burnt village. The reason of this state of things is not to be found in any peculiarities of the Russian peasant's character, though it frequently prompts him to misuse his liberty, but chiefly in the unfavorable position in which he has been placed by the new system of administration, which makes him dependent on the commune and on a number of officials whom he is obliged to pay out of his own pocket. The rural commune has unlimited power over both the person and the property of the peasant, so that he has in reality only changed his master, and his present dependence on the commune is not much better than his former state of serfage. * * * He is bound to pay a fixed sum to his former master as redemption money for the house in which he lives and the land on which it stands. This, to a certain extent, restricts his freedom of action, but it is rendered quite illusory by the circumstance that the land which he cultivates for himself and his family, and for which he must pay, is not his own, but the property of the commune, which may dispose of it at pleasure. Thus Ivan, after devoting all his care to the cultivation of a piece of land allotted to him, may find it in the following year transferred by the commune to another peasant, while he himself gets in exchange a field which is perhaps not so well situated, or negligently cultivated. Nor is this all. The commune is responsible for payments due from the peasants; and if any of these fall into arrear through the insufficiency of the means of the poorer members, those who are better off have to make up the deficiency, failing which the commune seizes their horses and cows. Another restriction on the personal liberty of the peasant in Russia is the right of the commune to refuse him a pass when he wishes to seek service away from his village. The grant of these passes often depends on the arbitrary will of a clerk, who refuses it from motives of personal hostility or requires a bribe before he will give it. It very often happens that peasants who have obtained passes for St. Petersburg or Moscow are called back for some trifling reason, and if they refuse to return they are taken back by the police like common criminals, without even being given the opportunity of winding up their business in the town. Such are the circumstances—without the slightest security for the produce of one's labor, and in constant fear of what the next day may bring forth— in which not hundreds or thousands, but millions of people live in Russia.—[Cologne Gazette.

A TARTAR TENT.—A writer on the Tartars says "Their tents are made of felt, stretched on a framework of thin curved strips of wood six feet long, which fold up for the camels to carry, and when opened out take the form of a segment of a circle. Four of these frames form the circular side of the tent, and on the top are placed curved rafters which concentrate in a hoop three or four feet in diameter, which is the roof-tree and chimney. As soon as it is all bound together with camel's hair ropes nothing short of a tornado will make it budge. When the bright fire of the saxaul (a shrub which serves as fuel here) throws its ruddy light over the bright-colored carpets, rugs and cushions which are spread within, and lights up the arms and cooking utensils, the saddles and bridles, Tartar guitar, and various household articles which are hung up on a light trellis of wood covered with thick white felt, there are less pleasing interiors to be seen not far from London or New York than the kibitka of the Tartar."

The heaviest tax payers in Boston, beside the Sears' estate, are assessed as follows: Moses Williams, $2,511,400; H. Hollis Hunnewell, $1,716,700; John A. Lowell, $1,405,400; William Minot, Jr., $1,183,600; James Parker, $1,095,500; Fred. R. Sears, $1,262,200; Henry R. Williams, $1,032,600; Arioch Wentworth, $1,022,400; William W. Tucker, $1,181,900. Charles Francis Adams is assessed for $856,000.

FIRE ALARM REGULATIONS.

To send out an alarm.

Any person who discovers a fire is requested to immediately give the alarm by crying fire, and, going to the box nearest the fire, to send out a general alarm by procuring the key, unlocking the box, and firmly putting the hook down, once only, then closing the door, being careful to see that it is locked, and returning the key.

The person sending out an alarm from a box is requested to remain near said box until the first engine arrives, to direct the firemen to the exact locality of the fire.

Cautions.

Never pull a box if the small gong inside is striking or the machinery of the box is heard running.

Do not pull a box for a fire seen at a distance, or unless you are sure of the locality of a fire.

Key holders are requested not to allow their keys to be taken except by responsible parties.

Bell Ringers.

Bell ringers are engaged to ring the following church bells in connection with the telegraph's alarm:—

The First and North Baptist, United Congregational and Emanuel with instructions to ring their respective bells for five minutes immediately after the telegraphic alarm has completed its four rounds and then to repeat eight times the number of the box from which the alarm is sent.

Recall.

Nine blows upon the telegraphic alarm bells will indicate that the fire is out and that the services of the department are not required.

ecting the Apparatus.

One stroke on the bells by the telegraphic signal will simply indicate that the apparatus is in good order.

LOCATION OF BOXES AND KEYS.

INTERESTING COTTON FACTORY STATISTICS.—The number of cotton factories in the United States in 1810 was reported to be 241, and the number of spindles estimated at 80,400, an average of 400 for each mill. According to a report of a committee of Congress, in 1815, $40,000,000 was then invested in cotton manufactures, and 100,000 persons were employed; 27,000,000 pounds of cotton were consumed, producing 81,000,000 yards of cloth, valued at $24,300,000. In Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut, were 165 mills, with 119,310 spindles, and it has been estimated that the total number of spindles at that time was 350,000. Power looms soon afterwards coming into general use, the number of spindles increased to 1,500,000 in 1830, and 1,700,000 in 1835.

Complete and trustworthy statistics of cotton manufactures seem to have been first reported by the census of 1840. There were then in the United States 1,240 mills, with 2,284,631 spindles, and 129 dyeing and printing establishments. These establishments employed 72,119 hands and produced goods valued at $46,350,430. The amount of capital invested was $51,103,359. The leading cotton manufacturing States were Massachusetts, having 278 mills, with 665,095 spindles; Rhode Island, 209 mills, with 518,817 spindles; New York, 117 mills, with 211,659 spindles, and Connecticut, 116 mills, with 181,319 spindles. In 1850 there were 1,094 mills in the United States; in 1860, 1,091 mills, with 5,235,727 spindles, and in 1870, 956 mills, with 7,132,416 spindles.

AMERICAN CREDIT IMPROVING ABROAD.—The recent fluctuations of prices on the Stock Exchange have served American credit. Compared with shaky European kingdoms, and still shakier South American republics, the United States present, especially since the extinction of the inflationists, the most winning evidences of solvency. Funding of the United States debt in the new five per cents.—which has been entrusted in Europe to Messrs. Rothchild—had for some time hung fire, but a month ago the great financing firm intimated to the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington that they were prepared to take over the whole of the unsold remainder of the five per cent. loan for disposal on the European market. This offer has justified Mr. Bristow in calling in for redemption on the 15th of February next, the balance of the five-twenties of 1864 and some of the first issues of the same bonds of 1865. It is certain that the United States need not go on paying six per cent. on the remainder of the five-twenties; but it is equally certain that to fund the debt these bonds represent at five per cent. would be inconsistent with the present state of American credit. The next funding operations will be undertaken, it is believed upon the basis of the 4½ and 4 per cent. bonds, and the Washington Treasury may fairly expect to place these favorably upon the European market. But before such operations are initiated Congress must be consulted, and it is probable that the bonds will not be touched until something has been attempted in the way of funding the greenbacks. There can be no doubt that an appreciable improvement in the currency would immensely strengthen American credit abroad and facilitate the ultimate funding of the debt at a low rate justified by the stability of the government and the honesty of its financial administration.—[Pall Mall Gazette.
